MEDICATION GUIDE

Buprenorphine (BUE-pre-NOR-feen) and Naloxone (NAH-lox-own) Sublingual Tablets, CIII

IMPORTANT: Keep buprenorphine and naloxone sublingual tablet in a secure place away from children. Accidental use by a child is a medical emergency and can result in death. If a child accidentally takes buprenorphine and naloxone sublingual tablet, get emergency help or call 911 right away. Tell your healthcare provider if you are living in a household where there are small children.

What is the most important information I should know about buprenorphine and naloxone sublingual tablet?

- Buprenorphine and naloxone sublingual tablet contains a medicine called buprenorphine. Buprenorphine is an opioid that can cause serious and life-threatening breathing problems, especially if you take or use certain other medicines or drugs.
- Ask your healthcare provider about medicines like naloxone or nalmefene that can be used in an emergency to reverse opioid overdose, including accidental use of buprenorphine and naloxone sublingual tablet by a child. If naloxone or nalmefene is given, you must call 911 or get emergency medical help right away to treat an overdose or accidental use of an opioid.
- Buprenorphine and naloxone sublingual tablet may cause serious and life-threatening breathing problems. Get emergency help right away if you:

- feel faint
- feel dizzy
- are confused
- feel sleepy or uncoordinated
- have blurred vision
- have slurred speech
- are breathing slower than normal
- cannot think well or clearly

• Do not take buprenorphine and naloxone sublingual tablet with certain medicines. Taking buprenorphine and naloxone sublingual tablet with other opioid medicines, benzodiazepines, gabapentinoids (gabapentin or pregabalin), alcohol, or other central nervous system depressants (including street drugs) can cause severe drowsiness, decreased awareness, breathing problems, coma, and death.

• Do not inject (“shoot-up”) buprenorphine and naloxone sublingual tablet. Injecting buprenorphine and naloxone sublingual tablet may cause life-threatening infections and other serious health problems. Injecting buprenorphine and naloxone sublingual tablet may cause sudden serious withdrawal symptoms such as pain, cramps, vomiting, diarrhea, anxiety, sleep problems, and cravings.

• Do not switch from buprenorphine and naloxone sublingual tablet to other medicines that contain buprenorphine without talking with your healthcare provider. The amount of buprenorphine in a dose of buprenorphine and naloxone sublingual tablet is not the same as in other medicines that contain buprenorphine. Your healthcare provider will prescribe a starting dose of buprenorphine and naloxone sublingual tablet that may be different than other buprenorphine containing medicines you may have been taking.

• Do not stop taking buprenorphine and naloxone sublingual tablet suddenly. You could become sick and have withdrawal symptoms because your body has become used to the medicine (physical dependence). Physical dependence is not the same as drug addiction.

- In an emergency, have family members tell emergency department staff that you are physically dependent on an opioid and are being treated with buprenorphine and naloxone sublingual tablet.
- Never give anyone else your buprenorphine and naloxone sublingual tablet. They could die from taking it. Selling or giving away buprenorphine and naloxone sublingual tablet is against the law.
- Store buprenorphine and naloxone sublingual tablet securely, out of sight and reach of children, and in a location not accessible by others, including visitors to the home.

What is buprenorphine and naloxone sublingual tablet?

- Buprenorphine and naloxone sublingual tablet is a prescription medicine used to treat opioid addiction in adults and is part of a complete treatment program that also includes counseling and behavioral therapy.

Who should not take buprenorphine and naloxone sublingual tablet?

Do not take buprenorphine and naloxone sublingual tablet if you are allergic to buprenorphine or naloxone.

Before taking buprenorphine and naloxone sublingual tablet, tell your healthcare provider about all of your medical conditions, including if you have:

- trouble breathing or lung problems
- a curve in your spine that affects your breathing
- Addison's disease
- an enlarged prostate (men)
- problems urinating
- liver, kidney, or gallbladder problems
- alcoholism
- a head injury or brain problem

- mental health problems
- adrenal gland or thyroid gland problems
- tooth problems, including a history of cavities

Tell your healthcare provider if you are:

- pregnant or plan to become pregnant. If you take buprenorphine and naloxone sublingual tablet while pregnant, your baby may have symptoms of opioid withdrawal at birth that could be life-threatening if not recognized and treated. Talk to your healthcare provider if you are pregnant or plan to become pregnant.
- breastfeeding or plan to breastfeed. Buprenorphine and naloxone can pass into your breast milk and harm your baby. Talk to your healthcare provider about the best way to feed your baby if you take buprenorphine and naloxone sublingual tablet. Monitor your baby for increased drowsiness and breathing problems if you breastfeed during treatment with buprenorphine and naloxone sublingual tablet.

Tell your healthcare provider about all the medicines you take, including prescription and over-the-counter medicines, vitamins, or herbal supplements.

How should I take buprenorphine and naloxone sublingual tablet?

Read the Instructions for Use at the end of this Medication Guide for detailed instructions on how to take buprenorphine and naloxone sublingual tablet.

- Take buprenorphine and naloxone sublingual tablet exactly as prescribed by your healthcare provider. Your healthcare provider may change your dose after seeing how it affects you. Do not change your dose unless your healthcare provider tells you to change it.

- If you miss a dose of buprenorphine and naloxone sublingual tablet, take it as soon as you remember. If it is almost time for your next dose, skip the missed dose and take the next dose at your regular time. Do not take 2 doses at the same time unless your healthcare provider tells you to. If you are not sure about your dosing, call your healthcare provider.
- Dispose of expired, unwanted, or unused buprenorphine and naloxone sublingual tablets by taking your drug to an authorized DEA-registered collector or drug take-back program. If one is not available, you can dispose of buprenorphine and naloxone sublingual tablets by mixing the product with dirt, cat litter, or coffee grounds; placing the mixture in a sealed plastic bag, and throwing the bag in your trash. Visit www.fda.gov/drugdisposal for additional information on disposal of unused medicines.

If you take too many buprenorphine and naloxone sublingual tablets or overdose, call Poison Control or get emergency medical help right away.

What should I avoid while taking buprenorphine and naloxone sublingual tablet?

- Do not drive, operate heavy machinery, or perform any other dangerous activities until you know how buprenorphine and naloxone sublingual tablet affects you. Buprenorphine can cause drowsiness and slow reaction times. Buprenorphine and naloxone sublingual tablet can make you sleepy, dizzy, or lightheaded.
- You should not drink alcohol or take prescription or over-the-counter medicines that contain alcohol while taking buprenorphine and naloxone sublingual tablet, because this can lead to loss of consciousness or even death.
